Finding yourself may sound like an inherently self-centered goal, but it is actually an unselfish process that is at the root of everything we do in life. In order to be the most valuable person to the world around us, the best partner, parent etc, we have to first know who we are, what we value and, in effect, what we have to offer.

around you and start to dig deeper, know yourself better and gather information for the journey ahead of you in getting where you want to go. As you know, your Latina sisters are around you to support and anchor you, and weâ€™re all rooting for you!

Lesson one: KNOW YOURSELF

Socrates says that the main priority of life is to find yourself â€œ and, if you choose, you can become the worldâ€™s expert on yourself. This is the path of personal growth and development and ultimately no-one can have a better understanding of yourself than you.

so by watching yourself. The clearest answer will come by looking in a mirror at yourself, because the body is the complete out-picturing of what the subconscious mind is expressing. Its closest manifestation is through the physical body, and it reflects itself in the health, vitality, and appearance. Then, watch what you do. Watch what you say.

Often junior people are told to find role models, preferably same-sex, same-race, likable ones, hopefully of the same sexual orientation and value structure. One is told to find this saint and then learn to be like her or him. Saints however are few, (especially ones of the same-sex, same-race, etc.). Therefore, it is easier just to find mentors.
